

AffinityImmuno®

Research Associate

1 year contract Full-Time
Charlottetown, PE, CA

The company:

AffinityImmuno is a life-science company based in Charlottetown, PE, Canada that discovers, develops, manufactures and commercializes antibodies for human health applications.

About the role:

The Research Associate will be responsible for designing, executing and interpreting experiments and analytical procedures under general supervision. Initiates and executes scientific research and development strategies for a variety of biological analytical techniques. Investigates the feasibility of applying a wide variety of scientific principles and concepts to potential inventions, products and problems. Plans and executes laboratory research. Maintains broad knowledge of principles and theories for bioanalytical techniques.

Responsibilities:

- In consultation with supervisor, designs procedural and experimental approach to meet designated scientific objectives.
- Initiates and develop plans to ensure the timely completion of several sets of experiments.
- Performs complex analytical procedures using established techniques.
- May assist in development of new experimental techniques in consultation with supervisor or colleagues.
- Interpret and report results in oral and written formats, both within and outside the department.
- In consultation with supervisor or manager, identifies significant findings and relevance to project objectives.
- May supervise or train lower level employees in performing routine established procedures.
- May perform peer review of data for good documentation practices.
- Performs laboratory maintenance and calibration activities on a regular basis.

Education/Experience:

- B.Sc or diploma in bioscience or chemistry and a minimum of 1 years related experience.
- Demonstrated track record of conducting controlled experiments.

Skills / Pre-requisites:

- Demonstrates working knowledge of scientific principles and techniques in the relevant scientific area.
- Strong organization skills and be willing to learn.
- Strong analytical skills and ability to draw conclusions and determine strategies based upon data.
- Microsoft Office proficient.

How to apply:

Please send resume and cover letter to support@affinityimmuno.com with the subject line: Research Associate.